Just one week remains before the 2016 Health Care Provider Wellness Conference in Carlsbad. While time is short, space is open for online registration. On-site registration for the event on Thursday, June 9 and Friday, June 10 is available as well.

The slate of speakers for Wellness: Breaking Through the Barriers promises a timely look at practices that boost productivity and lower costs for health care organizations. Attendees will learn about the real ROI of worksite wellness, and rapidly-evolving ways to nurture wellness in diverse settings.

In the two-plus decades since it emerged, wellness has developed into an evidence-based field that delivers both concrete and broadly-defined benefits to organizations, organizing committee chair Olivia Moses said.

“Wellness programs help protect an employer’s No. 1 asset,” said Moses, Loma Linda University Health’s wellness program administrator. “In a hospital setting, wellness programs have the honor of caring for

NHF Launches Ventura Recuperative Care Program With Gold Coast's Help

HASC is partnering with National Health Foundation (NHF) to address the needs of homeless individuals in Ventura County who have been hospitalized and need safe discharge options. Gold Coast Health Plan has generously sponsored NHF's Ventura County Recuperative Care program through its Alternative Resources for Community Health (ARCH).

Often, homeless individuals are discharged from a hospital following treatment with instructions to rest, and complete a course of medication, wound care or other treatment until they are fully recuperated. Through recuperative care, patients receive medical oversight, daily supportive services, connections to medical homes and other providers, and assistance in finding housing. NHF's Ventura Recuperative Care program has the potential to serve as many as 275 people per year with an average length of stay of 10 to 14 days. The program will be launched this fall through a partnership with The Salvation Army in Ventura County.

NHF has been working on a needs assessment for Ventura County and found that about 95 out of 379 hospital patients would qualify for recuperative care every month.

"We are grateful for the opportunity to partner with Gold Coast Health Plan to bring this much needed program to Ventura County," NHF CEO Kelly Bruno said.

POLST Training Is Planned by Coalition

POLST: It Starts with a Conversation is a two-day training seminar offered by the Coalition for Compassionate Care of California this July 14 – 15 in San Francisco.

For those interested in the issue, but unable to make the trip, the CCCC is now planning a Southern California training seminar for 2017, communications director Liz Salmi said.

The group also offers a 3-hour online course that covers the basics. To learn more, click on the link below — and scroll down.

The intensive education seminars are designed to help health care providers and organizations develop the skills necessary to have quality conversations about Physician Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment (POLST).

A total of 11.5 CME/CE credits are available for participants.

caregivers, and as research shows, everything from patient care and the bottom line improves with these efforts.”

Keynote speaker John Harris of Performance pH will join Moses as one of 10 scheduled presenters. Others will include Marian Ruderman, Ph.D. on the restorative power of sleep and Helge Osterhold, Ph.D. on the stress-busting benefits of mindfulness practice.

The conference is preceded by the Certified Wellness Coordinator WellCert certification program, which runs June 7 – 8 at the same location.

In addition to informative sessions, this year’s conference features a fun run/walk and assorted wellness activities.

ATLAS Offers Safe Handling Assessment

ATLAS Lift Tech offers facilities a free comprehensive facility-wide safe patient handling and management (SPHM) assessment, accompanied by an implementation plan, to give organizations an ideal starting-point towards reaching their quality and safety goals. The firm’s program is tailored to optimize current initiatives, make the most out of existing resources and set targets for improved metrics and reduced costs.

Elements of the process include:

- Inventory and availability of equipment
- Continuity of SPHM program
- Interdisciplinary SPHM taskforce
- Policies, procedures and algorithms
- Patient admission and assessment practices

- Pressure ulcer prevention measures
- Unscheduled admission pre-planning
- Patient mobility proficiencies

- Facility engineering controls
- Each facility participating in the assessment will receive a document outlining the facility’s existing SPHM landscape along with concise recommendations. The document goes even further by including an implementation plan customized to a facility’s unique setting. ATLAS also pays attention to the culture and patient population of each organization to reach its unique objectives.

To learn more about ATLAS Lift Tech, visit www.atlaslifttech.com. Please contact Jack McSweeney directly to set up a call, and learn more about the assessment process and the appropriate next steps.
